

One piece of advice from the Round Table Talk that I think is useful is when one of the students, Skylar, said try; at times things will seem impossible and unreachable, but as long as we try and try wholeheartedly, it will make a difference. Also, while trying, someone might see the effort and help motivate you. Another piece of advice is to have fun. College can get stressful at times with classes, assignments, and deadlines, but within all of that, it is important to not lose ourselves, mentally and physically and mentally.

I am most excited this year for experiencing college. Although things are altered due to COVID-19, there is still an excitement to embark on this new journey in life. Hopefully, things will return to normal in due time.

One piece of advice I would give a freshman or a senior is to not procrastinate, do not become lazy, and be punctual. People think that having responsibilities mean that they will not have a life, so their focus is more so on making sure they have a life rather than making sure their responsibilities are taken care of. Being punctual and not being lazy or a procrastinator will ensure that your responsibilities are taken care of and you still have your life.
